

GDPR QUICK FACTS

IEEE has chosen to, when possible, apply the concepts of the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) to all individuals, even those outside of the EU. It is critical for all volunteers and staff adhere to our data policies and procedures. In the case of the GDPR, violation of the regulation can result in substantial fines. The following is a short summary, for more detailed information, visit

IEEE Volunteers and Staff Are Responsible For

- Proper collection, management, and use of personal data held on behalf of IEEE, including mailing lists.
- Responding to requests for copies of personal data and permanently deleting that data upon request by an individual. (Bulletin 6: Handling Requests From Individuals Under GDPR)
- Reporting data breaches to IEEE IT Security Team at privacy@ieee.org as soon you discover them. IEEE only has 72 hours to notify European Union authorities. (Bulletin 2: Handling Data Breaches Under GDPR)
- Requiring accepting the IEEE Privacy Policy to complete event registration if your Society, Council, or Technical Community is a major financial sponsor. (Bulletin 5: Complying with GDPR During the Event Registration Process)

Campaign and Data Use

Must Do

Capture consent before communicating with an individual, unless the communication meets the membership or transaction rules described below.

Validate your mailing list within 72 hours prior to distribution. If you are using centralized internal staff supported programs such as MGA eNotice or Business and Data Related Services (BDRS) this check is done automatically. This applies to conference lists as well as society lists. (Bulletin 11: IEEE List Validator Tool)

Respond to individual data subject requests (e.g. copies of personal data or deleting personal data) promptly. Erasing an individual's information from your databases, systems, and mailing lists must occur within 21 days of the request. This only applies when there is not a legal requirement to retain the data. (Bulletin 6: Handling Requests from Individuals Under GDPR)

Can Do

You are allowed to send communications to your members about membership information (e.g. membership newsletters, renewal information) even if the member has not accepted the IEEE Privacy Policy. [Effective September 2019, acceptance of the IEEE Privacy policy is required during renewal]

You are allowed to communicate with an individual who has interacted with your Society, Council, or Technical Community in the preceding 36 months (e.g. attended a conference, subscribed to a journal) if the communication is about that interaction (e.g. inform 2019 attendees about the 2020 conference).

GDPR QUICK FACTS

Cannot

You can never communicate with an individual who has selected DO NOT CONTACT in the IEEE privacy portal. Always confirm your mailing list with the Consent Management System (CMS) using the IEEE List Validator Tool (Bulletin 11: IEEE List Validator Tool). If your Society, Council, or Technical Community is using IEEE systems, these checks are done automatically.

If an individual only engages with you on social media, this does not count as consent. You cannot communicate with this individual outside the respective social media platform, or add them to your mailing list. (Bulletin 8: GDPR and Social Media)

Other Important Information

- If you manage your community's website, add the Cookie Banner and IEEE Privacy Policy to your websites.
- Ensure your websites do not list individuals' addresses and phone numbers. (Bulletin 9: GDPR and Personal Information on Websites)
- Require accepting the IEEE Privacy Policy to complete event registration if your Society, Council, or Technical Community is a major financial sponsor. (Bulletin 5: GDPR and Event Registration)
- All contracts must include data privacy clauses to ensure that our vendor partners support our compliance obligations.
